PRAISING GOD – HOW SWEET IT IS

I'm learning something about evil. Satanic force strikes virtue like an earthquake, suddenly with enormous unrelenting violence. Most victims are swallowed-up and consumed in the initial onslaught, while supporters are scattered. If, however, innocence digs in with determination and seeks help from the righteous, justice can prevail. Neutral elements involved stand little chance and are quickly and easily either enslaved, destroyed, or dissuaded.

Satanic forces were preying off two little boys, Jon and Ben. When exposed these devils turned to corrupt court officials in league with their debauchery to safeguard them and obliterate any opposition. A Connecticut attorney and succession of Child & Family Court judges began a progression of actions designed to erase a Mom and deliver her sons into the hands of demon possessed child abusers. Desperate before the power of these entities, Linda Wiegand abandoned her home and fled with Jon and Ben. During her absence the cabal worked feverishly in preparing a judicial pit to bury her in. Louis Kiefer filed motion after motion seizing Linda's assets, while the judge denied Linda any court representation. A divorce was decreed, summary judgments were made, alimony, child support, and attorney fees awarded – all while the Mom hid like a mouse in a maze with her precious little ones. When the trap was set, Linda, Jon and Ben were sold out by a Judas friend, bought for $100,000 by the coven. Government bloodhounds ran the family to ground, arrested the Mom and proudly delivered the boys into the hands of their abuser. Intervening legal advocates were turned aside through greed, intimidation, confusion, and other adverse currents of energy. Hopeless and helpless the Mom, Linda Wiegand, contacted me in September 1996.

Unable to accept the extremes described by her concerning occult affiliation by the police, court officers, and the abusers, I went to Connecticut following Spike Airborne in Chattanooga. No doubt Linda was convinced that the judicial system had failed. We visited a distinguished Massachusetts attorney for advice. Kidnapping the children would only doom Linda, Jon and Ben to a fugitive life. It became obvious that the Connecticut Family Court was being manipulated in favor of the abusers. I sought media attention to light a fire, that state officials might feel the heat and see the light – it failed. The story wasn't "upbeat" enough. A month later Parade Magazine revealed the reason why: child sexual abuse in America was swelled 700-percent in the past five years as the media continues to encourage and promote such depravity. claimed the Suffield Police had threatened and were currently stalking her. My son, Jim, and I borrowed her blue Japanese-made compact car and determined that all she said was true. We were falsely arrested on the last day in September, jailed under a $2-million bail, and released when Craig Smith (Swiss America) furnished a $100,000 cash bond.

Storm clouds mounted as Kiefer filed defamation suits against me, defense attorneys, police, social workers and medical witnesses. His friendly judge, George Levine, incarcerated Linda in the state's maximum security prison for not paying some $600,000 in assessments. Kiefer busied himself buying up professionals to say the boys were not being sexually assaulted. The piece-de-resistance was to be a videotaped deposition of Jon and Ben showing there had been no sexual abuse. The staged event was to be witnessed by Vermont authorities who had initially charged Tom Wilkinson with assaulting the boys. Kiefer's orchestration came apart when little Jon refused to cooperate and, as recorded by Vermont observers, "despite being reduced to tears, having been impeached by their own attorneys, Jon Wiegand steadfastly insisted that he had been raped by his step-father." Kiefer immediately filed a Federal injunction in Vermont to prevent the state attorney general from releasing the information as being prejudicial to his civil case against me. The Enfield prosecutor offered to reduce the charges if Jim and I would testify against Linda – no deal. Our attorneys hurt us at every turn by including insulting documents in their court presentations, refusing to follow up on investigations, and ignoring filing dates.

Last month it was time to take the initiative. I encouraged Freedom Call radio listeners, and CFA Newsletter readers to file written complaints with the Connecticut Judicial Review Council. Judge Levine released Linda from prison on April 7th – for two weeks. She joined us at the Dallas Preparedness Expo on the 11th and 12th with orders to report back on Monday the 21st. The council meets the third Wednesday of each month (16 April). It is composed of three judges, three attorneys and six normal citizens. When Linda appeared in court on 21 April, it was a "changed" judge Levine. Previously, the judge had coached and cajoled Kiefer while trading courtroom smiles and chuckles. Kiefer and Levine were frequently seen coming out the judges office together in chumming fashion. Linda's attorney challenged Levine unsuccessfully to step down since he was obviously prejudiced against her. He refused and threatened to lock up the lawyer for contempt. Kiefer prepared a brief to have Linda re-incarcerated using "Sealed" Search Warrant results pertaining to Jim and me that were refused to us! He had his Suffield Police buddies and a fist full of hate mail, hoping to keep Linda locked up. Under the avalanche of outraged citizen complaints to the council, ON 21 APRIL, JUDGE LEVINE WITHDREW FROM ALL MATTERS PERTAINING TO LINDA OR HER SONS!

FURTHER, LEVINE IS SCHEDULED TO APPEAR BEFORE THE COUNCIL ON 21 MAY!!! All because of those Constitutional Patriots and their fax machines!

Linda's trial was set for jury selection on 26 April, but PROSECUTOR SLOAN WAS INJURED WHILE ON NAVAL RESERVE DUTY. Sloan, you will recall, is the same person who said that I was a disgrace to the Uniform of the United States. Twice, Sloan has had Jim and I go to the time and expense of traveling to Connecticut to learn that he is indisposed. Maybe all of these miscreants are feeling just a small margin of God's justice. No doubt Linda will win her case. She is charged with two counts of Custodial Interference. Her defense is "Justification." Connecticut juries are limited to six persons except in cases of murder. We desperately need your help with donations to pay for Vermont and Massachusetts police investigators, social workers, and medical experts who will verify that Wilkinson raped Jon and Ben. PLEASE SEND ALL DONATIONS TO "BO GRITZ, BOX 308, KAMIAH, IDAHO 83536." Make checks payable to "Save Jon & Ben" or the Gritz-Wiegand Defense Fund. AS OF THIS MONTH YOU MAY ALSO USE CREDIT CARDS TO HELP US IN THIS ALL IMPORTANT COUNTER-ATTACK. CALL 208-935-1325 OR 2918.

Don't forget our Sandy Valley home raffle. Claudia and I are accepting defense fund donations in $200 increments. Experts anticipate we need $200,000 to see us through our legal battles. Once 1,000 donation packets have been received, we will "gift" our home and hanger to one of you. We lived in the home for 13 years. It has too many quality features to list including a master bedroom with adjoining Jacuzzi room, library, work out room, three large bedrooms and bathrooms, one smaller bedroom, office space, four telephone and fax lines, storage rooms, two-car garage, top of the line carpet, copper plumbing, all quality appliances, satellite antenna, three large yards with automatic watering, huge hanger large enough to store my twin-engine aircraft and four cars, plus junk.

Two California National Guardsmen sponsored a defense fund collection in Visalia, California which raised $4,500. Contributors were eligible for awards spanning a $5,000 trust, years supply of food, $50 gold coin, SKS Chinese Rifle, et al. Most of the winners elected to leave the prizes with the committee for a follow-on effort. We greatly appreciate your generosity in helping us through this difficult time. Word from Connecticut is that Jim and I won't go to trial until sometime this coming Autumn. It seems none of the sitting judges want the case. Judges rotate this Fall.

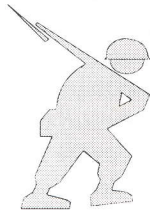

I am learning that if a cause is just (Ruby Ridge, Montana Freeman, Jon & Ben), and if we join together as a body committed to act within the law and seek God's Divine intervention, we can have justice. Without You, Kevin Harris, Randy, Elisheba, Sara, and Rachel Weaver would be dead. The Freeman siege might well have ended as did Waco and what would have been the fate of Linda, Jon, Ben, Jim and myself? Thank You -- Praise God! This is our country. We the People can still have good government if we are willing to pull together in cleansing the bureaucracy of human sewage! I'm still collecting signatures awarding Jon and Ben medals of valor. Please call in, fax, or write, giving your name and State.

While at the Dallas Expo, some well meaning gentlemen asked me aside to explain why the medals for Jon and Ben? Most victims of child sexual abuse suffer horrible emotional scarring that leaves them severely debilitated, self-destructive and even suicidal. Jon and Ben are two innocent little boys ravaged at the hands of a demonic step-father. I want them to grow up knowing that thousands of Americans love and care for them. I know that thousands of you do cherish these children of God, but how do Jon and Ben, against all the negative conditioning, know they are valued and loved? I know how much my soldiers mean to me. Each one of them is embodied within the decorations I wear commemorating their valor and sacrifice. What can I do to illustrate how much they mean to me? I will give them something that means so much to me. Alone, my two medals with "V" wouldn't mean much, but accompanied by thousands of your signatures representing every State in America, I hope they will get the message. They aren't very old, but neither was David. They have been, and are very brave. If you have a better idea, please let me know -- otherwise kindly collect signatures from near and far that might strengthen our two little buds.

MARCHING TOWARD THE MORROW

Somehow I knew that with each graduation from school, a new beginning awaited. Years in Vietnam allowed me to develop physical courage, leadership and loyalty. The following Prisoner of War effort instilled patience and tenacity. My tests with the government over drug smuggling affirmed the importance of integrity and honor. During the Presidential campaign I endured humility. I've found accuracy and truth the most important traits in dealing with the patriot movement. None of these essential strengths are associated with university degrees, or academic excellence -- they are the hard realities of life that are paid for only through time and mileage experience. I am now 58 and still learning. Surprisingly, I am just now beginning to learn the meaning of Rudyard Kipling's poem. I offer it to you as a measure of your own readiness for the morrow:

"If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you,
If you can trust yourself when all others doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise:

If you can dream -- and not make dreams your master;

If you can think -- and not make thoughts your aim,
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster
And treat those two impostors just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
And stoop and build 'em up with worn-out tools:

If you can make one heap of all your winnings
And risk it on one turn of pitch-and-toss,
And lose and start again at your beginnings,
And never breath a word about your loss;
If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
To serve your turn long after they are gone,
And so hold on when there is nothing in you
Except the Will which says to them: "Hold On!"

If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with kings -- nor lose the common touch,
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you,
If all men count with you, but none too much;
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And -- which is more -- you'll be a Man, my son!"

In my own case, it's the part about friends not hurting that I find the most difficult to overcome. In reviewing my Connecticut case file I see where several "neighbors" have sent harmful missives to Prosecutor Sloan, obviously in hope of doing Jim and I damage. It makes me want to move away from our chosen home, but I won't. Those of you who read this newsletter hoping to glean further darts to bias the judge against us, ponder this: I have never hassled, or lied about another soul in my life -- and I take immense umbrage at so called neighbors who maliciously strive to malign my life. I certainly won't threaten, but I promise: you don't want me for an enemy.

We have fought this Linda-Jon-Ben case against bigot-controlled media, lying special interest groups across the country, corrupt police, vindictive prosecutors, immoral and incompetent attorneys, Satanic cults, and people who live to hate. I have high confidence that we will achieve our objectives: 1) Jon and Ben safe; 2) Linda united with her children; and 3) Jim and I exonerated. When, by the power of many prayers and Grace of God, we win, what will be the reply of our critics? Victory for the Wiegands is not the end -- just a step toward a new beginning. I will forever be in your service -- like it or not!

I'VE DIVED AND GONE TO HEAVEN -- Almost

I feel a little like Rex Harrison in MY FAIR LADY after Ms. Doolittle performed so admirably at the royal ball. It was the longest, toughest Spike ever and "WE DID IT!" Our instructors: David Day, Melody, Chris, and Jeff set their own Guinness records for consecutive dives made in certifying 81 of the 85 Spikers attending SPIKE SCUBA at Ocala, Florida, 13-19 April. Among the valiant frogmen were several polliwogs (the youngest 9 year old Anthony "Ant" Robinson), and a school of 13 females! As a matter of fact, Krystal Bujarski (15) was presented the Most Outstanding Spike Diver Trophy. She arrived at the 40-Fathom Grotto with her dad, not intending to get wet – something everyone did. It rained throughout the first day. Among the bubbling, blowing, thrashing, dripping group were many silver-heads. The Robinson clan included Jack (Grand Dad), Pat (Grand Mom), Sheldon (Dad), Lise' (Mom), and sons (Anthony, Joshua, & Heath). Also present was the Paris Family (Jack, Heather & Monica) and the Bujarskis Kirby, Pam, Kim and Krystal), along with a number of husband and wife swim teams.

Spike Scuba was everything I had hoped for and much more. The day before graduation, I was addressing the group at the O-dark-30 formation and felt a tremendously strong righteous spirit. The New Agers claim Sedona, Arizona as a vortex of energy; Haton, the lizard god, says a giant crystal power exists in the mountains at Tahachapi, California. I've visited both locations. The unity of fellowship at Hal Watt's grotto exceeded anything I've experienced thus far. It was wonderful – to be in the presence of such a fine group at a time when they were individually progressing so much. I was equally pleased with the performance of the Spike Staff. Vicci and Claudia processed copious amounts of forms, photos, and provisions while Jerry maintained the cupboards. From this point on, every Scuba related assignment will be a piece of cake for our instructors. They were pressed to the max. Never before have so many learned so much in so little time – thanks to them. Every Spike Diver fell in love with an Angel from Austria named Walter. Day or night, Walter appeared where he was needed most, catching falling equipment, lifting divers up, helping everyone to stay afloat. I gave Walter my Navy Seal watch.

As promised, everyone's life was extended. I personally took Manulani's hand and took her deeper than U.S. Special Forces and Navy Seals dive. We swam at night, 65 feet beneath cavern overhangs while dive lights played along rows of ancient sea biscuits and sand dollars. Everyone strapped on slick jet pak-looking Rebreathers and experienced the newest revelation in underwater respiration. Scarlet Watts described how she set the current women's world deep-air ocean record. Training at the grotto, she plans to break her own record this summer. A rare treat was provided by Leon Scammerhorn. He is the world's foremost expert in "closed-circuit" SCUBA. Leon served 12 years in Special Forces underwater operations. Jim Gritz was his Q-Course instructor. Leon gave us all a briefing on the various rebreather units now available. Jerry Gillespie was fortunate enough to receive his certification from, and be Mister Scuba, Hal Watts, dive buddy. As with SPIKE Airborne, Sheldon Robinson, doubled as student and instructor, leading a dozen groups on deep and night dives. Mary and Jerry Stinnett spent their 24th wedding anniversary with us. Jerry was underwater, while Mary was mostly in the kitchen. She worked with Kim; Claudia's Mom, Pat Mallon, and Jerry Gillespie to feed the hungry fish, people food.

Every Spiker was a winner. World Record deep-dive holder Hal Watts taught us the meaning of the "F" word (Free) and then showed his generosity by signing Grotto "Cut Away" Views for everyone. Johnny Shelley was voted special recognition by all instructors for his super-special spirit in completing the most demanding curriculum. Johnny was awarded my Special Forces Combat Diver belt buckle. We all agreed the coveted "Shark Bite" Award should go to Dave for all the pain and anguish endured. Melody received a "Shark Repellent" towel. Jam Harrison won an engraved Scuba plaque from the Special Warfare Center for his outstanding contribution. Jam did his basic certification work at Lake Tahoe in 35-degree water so he could video Spike Scuba. Jam produced 10 video cassettes during Spike Airborne which he offers to Spikers for only $50. He recorded every moment of Spike Scuba and will announce tape availability in the CFA Newsletter as soon as they are edited. While Spikers were close to a line during the dangerous deep-air and night dives, Jam was hovering alone in the water with his camera and lights.

I was especially proud of my rare "Pup-Fish" (Melody), Jim and Dave. Melody is an accomplished Scuba instructor, who gained tons of teaching experience. Toward the end I saw her near the ragged edge, yet she entered the water at every opportunity to gently coach students through the many skill requirements. Jim was our sergeant-major and kept the universe in motion. He supervised all pre and post dives by assuring that more than 500 divers were properly dressed, equipped with full air canisters and working regulators, assigned to an instructor, with a buddy team and part of a planned dive group. He also maintained all performance records and taught classes on navigation, commercial diving, and security. Dave shouldered responsibility for all certifications. As other instructors began showing stress cracks, Dave became more solid. Dave is a most remarkable young man. Beside a chief Scuba instructor, he was our Jumpmaster during Spike Airborne. IT'S AMAZING THAT DAVE-DUDE IS STILL SINGLE!!!

Everyone in the underwater world knows and respects Hal Watts as "Mister Scuba." Hal had some very complementary comments about our Spikers. He paid the ultimate tribute to Sheldon Robinson, saying he had never dived with a more competent new diver. Melody taught Sheldon, but Sheldon is a young Scott Weekly. Hal noted that both Jerry and Dustin Gillespie took to life underwater exceptionally well. We are going to raffle off Jerry's "Handicap" placard – anyone who can get a kind word out of such an exacting Divemaster doesn't need special handling! Melody, Dave and I trained with Hal for a week before the class (we had to be qualified to police up students and equipment that ended up on the grotto bottom at 240-feet!).

Throughout the training not a single word of praise bubbled to the top – only Hal's piercing eyes observing every move. Hal said he had never been part of a better group than Spike. He was most impressed with how organized and disciplined everyone was.

Sunday, the day following graduation, we went to the grotto to help with clean up. It looked like I was late for formation. Spikers had been there since dawn putting things back together. I told Hal Watts, he might have to put up a "GO HOME SPIKERS" sign. Many of the Spike Divers have asked if we could hold an annual post graduate Scuba course. Just as soon as I clear the water out of my ears, I'll give the matter "deeper-deeper-deeper" consideration. Spike Scuba required all CFA-Staff except Mary Gillespie to be at the Grotto – she was left holding the Fort at Almost Heaven. I'm not sure Mary will let Jerry go back in the water unless we shower her with thanks for doing what normally requires six people!

COMING IN JULY – SPIKE O&I

The 12 phases of Spike Training were designed along the U.S. Special Forces Q-Course curriculum. The promise kept was that Spikers could be as qualified as anyone who ever wore the Green Beret. The purpose was to train Specially Prepared Individuals for Key Events designed to sustain essential community support systems under the most severe adverse conditions. For maximum effectiveness, individual Spikers should pool their resources and talents by forming themselves into A-B-C Teams at community, state, and regional levels.

Each Special Forces Operations Detachment (SFOD) has 12 members skilled in Leadership, Operations, Intelligence, Communications, Emergency Medicine, Security, and Engineering. The 12 phases of Spike presented an overview of all necessary skills. Spike Airborne and Scuba were two "Special Spikes" to produce "experts" in the areas of air and water operations. Each Spike Team should now have personnel available to plan and supervise these special operations. Follow-on Special Spikes will qualify Spikers as proficient experts in critical operational areas. These Spike training sessions are necessarily intensive and extended (Airborne four-days, Scuba six-days).

The next Special Spike is "Operations & Intelligence." This Spike will be conducted in the Sacramento, California area. Subjects will include Terrain Evaluation, Situation Estimates, Operations Orders, Intelligence Reporting, Counter-Intelligence methods, Psychological Operations, Security missions, Photo-Intelligence operations, Cyber-Intelligence, Handling of Detainees, Leadership challenges, and Advanced Hypnotherapy techniques.

The cost will be $300. Please call Vicci at 208-935-1325 to reserve your place. A $50 retainer must be sent to Bo Gritz, Box 308, Kamiah, Idaho 83536. Insure your note specifies the amount is for Spike O&I. Candidates must have either attended a previous Spike course or purchased a Spike

Video phase. Call Vicci for answers to questions. The next Special Spike is Spike Field Operations in the fall at Las Vegas. Visit our CFA website for updates: www.bogritz.com.

SWISS SELL GOLD – ANOTHER END TIME ROAD SIGN!

The Swiss have (had) 26,000 tons of gold -- more than any nation except Germany and America. Swiss law demands that 40% of its paper currency be backed by gold. Swiss banks are the most trusted in the world – until now.

News Media has been full of how Canada's Seagram whisky billionaire Bronfman's World Jewish Congress has sworn to bust Swiss banks in search of Jewish holocaust money. Edgar Bronfman owns the controlling stock in Time Warner, America's largest media mogul. Congressional stooges brought the Swiss to Washington to report on efforts to compensate Jews, suggesting they pay up as a "good faith" gesture. The Swiss government acknowledged they had turned up some $37 million that might conceivably be attached to Nazi and Jewish accounts. It wasn't enough. Bronfman wanted billions! Under scrutiny from world media, Swiss President Koller promised more, but his citizens refused contributions to Holocaust survivors through higher taxes. Last month Switzerland established a $4.7 billion "Solidarity Fund for Humanity," much to the approval of international Jewry. Switzerland will break its gold standard to fund the pay-off. Now that the dam is cracked, a full press is being made for Switzerland to sell off the remaining $25 billion in reserves to keep the world gold market artificially low. The Swiss have traditionally valued their gold at only one-third of the market price set in London twice daily.

Now that Bronfman has broken the Swiss banks, his money focus is today on Argentina. Following World War II more than a few Nazis fled to South America. Bronfman says they took Jewish money with them. While many Jews hail Bronfman as a conquering hero, he is being summoned to court – rabbinical court by the Beis Din Court of the Central Rabbinical Congress of the USA and Canada. Bronfman is being ordered to "freeze all activities." It's a perfect example of Bo Gritz Chicken Yard Economics. Now that Bronfman has grabbed up the lettuce leaf, all the other "chicken" organizations in his barnyard will chase after him, rather than seeking their own source of sustenance! In the meantime, Bronfman's own cabal of lawyers are already squabbling over how to divide up the spoils.

Switzerland's submission to a fiat system signals further clearance for a cashless society. You can bet that the big money will be lapping up Swiss gold. Many small investors will cut their losses and get out of the market believing the bottom has fallen through, when actually the opposite is true. I suggest that those people who have investment money use it to buy gold during this contrived lull. Once Switzerland's reserves are dumped, gold will have only one way to go – UP! Call Craig Smith for current details at 800-289-2646.

Last month the L. E. Eliasberg coin collection was auctioned off in New York City containing some of the world's finest coins. One of the rarest selections was an 1804 "Stickney Bust" U.S. dollar. The owners hoped it would bring $500K. The bidding started at $400,000 and didn't stop until it topped out at $1.8 million -- a record price for any U.S. coin! Some coins bought for only a few dollars sold for hundreds of thousands of dollars. An 1889 Morgan Silver went for $475,000; while an 1885 Trade Dollar brought $907,500.00! Numismatic coins are up 47%, while gold is down 20%. I believe if we can hang on, we will see the value of dated U.S. coins double.

THE CRASH OF 1997

CRUNCH

Somewhere within the Earth's plate system a shift occurs that is felt much later as an earthquake thousands of miles away. Wouldn't it be nice to know when and where critical tension is building up and avoid the resulting damage? Deep within the world financial system a recent chain of events will soon send shock waves reminiscent of October 1929 through Wall Street. Millions of unsuspecting people will be wiped out! You can prepare now and come out a winner. This latest crisis radiates from several contributing stress points.

The FED's tightening of money in 1994, like a chain of rear-end collisions, will be felt in our economy this summer. Clinton's tax increases are like lead weights around a drowning person's neck, pulling us further into debt. The Federal debt ($5.3 Trillion) is only a small part of the whole. The real amount exceeds $21 trillion!! -- considering $6 trillion Medicare, $8 trillion Social Security and $2 trillion in federal pensions. The largest debt, $16 trillion, is "OFF THE BOOKS." In blunt terms, every family of four Americans owes over $300,000! BUT, CONSIDERING ONLY THE WORKING AMERICANS THE INDIVIDUAL DEBT EXCEEDS $200,000!!! If you examine Clinton's 1994 budget, there is an appendix predicting today's children will fork over 82% of their lifetime earnings in paying today's bill. The government will have to decide this year whether or not to endure inflation by creating excess money to pay current demands, or default on programs.

Government cutbacks spell layoffs and standard of living reduction. Already Americans are at 1956 wage levels in "constant dollars" meaning hourly workers are making now what they made 40 years ago, but the worst is yet to come. After-tax incomes will continue to fall to half of what they are now -- because of increased taxes. Home owners with mortgages will suffer as market values decline and unemployment increases. Those of you with savings accounts, or other "paper assets" in conventional banks will likely withstand losses as these institutions go under. Both Europe and Japan are also nearing a debt waterfall -- adding to our own problems in decline of U.S. production. The bottom line finds nations purposely being plowed under in favor of international corporations. These mega-entities will use third-world slave labor to produce low overhead products for international markets.

The only sure-fire investment during the Crash of '29; the one market that tripled during the '73-74 Wall Street burp; and rose as a result of the Black Monday, 19 October 1987 fall, was gold. Do as you will, but metal will outlast paper in the coming economic firestorm. Get yours while the price is right!

DRAGON SPEAK

Most of you know my thoughts concerning the true personality of Nobel Peace Prize winner Mikhail Gorbachev. On 15 April, Gorby was at George Washington University reporting on his "Earth Charter" plan. Gorbachev was rejected as president of Russia in the first free election, but was chosen president of Green Cross International with Ted Turner and Robert Redford as his chief advisors. Gorbachev believes that God must be done away with before we can achieve world peace. Now that we have global government and a world economy, Gorby's job is to substitute a worship of Mother Nature for Almighty God. Listen to the main points of his speech and tell me he isn't "antichrist."

"Governments have run their course for the past two centuries and it is time to change directions. Man is part of nature and must learn to live in harmony with nature. Mankind needs a new set of Commandments for the future. The Charter accepted at the UN Earth Summit, June 1992 at Rio de Janeiro has been reworked and will be presented to the public for comment and then the UN for ratification as a tribute to Mother Earth. Mankind appeared after a long period of evolution and could disappear if we do not hearken to the signals from Mother Nature. Nothing in the 21st Century is more important than the environment. We must have solidarity among all nations -- free trade is not the final solution. America has an abundance of resources which should be shared with third-world nations to elevate their standard of living. The Earth can not support more than 7-billion people. Positive stabilization of the population must be achieved. Families will be limited to one child. A new scale of values and changes in health care will bring required changes in family values. International environmental laws must be merged with national regulations. Many USG officials and members of Congress understand and agree. We cannot abandon the strategy of establishing the New World Order as agreed to in the Charter of Paris signed both by the U.S. and Europe."

I have listed the many prophecies pointing to

"Mankind needs a new set of commandments for the future"

"America has an abundance of resources which should be shared with third-world nations to elevate their standard of living"

Gorbachev as the Antichrist of this time. If these are the end times, then in my opinion, Gorby fills the bill. His fathers were Christians, but he is an atheist. Israel esteems him a hero. According to his New York Times article he considers Pope John Paul II to be his partner, and Chief Ashkenazic Rabbi Israel Meir Lau, a close friend. Pope John Paul II supports Gorbachev as leader of a united Europe. Europeans consider Gorbachev as the most influential man in the world. Daniel 11: 30-32 states that the Antichrist will have influence over Israel and corrupt them by flattery.

The Antichrist will have the support of a strong spiritual leader (Revelation 19:19-20). A 1962 prophecy supposedly given by the Virgin Mary to Conchita Gonzalez of Garabandal foretells there will be only three more popes after John XXIII until the end time. The prophesy said the second pope would only rule a short time. Since Pope John XXIII there have been Pope Paul VI, Pope John Paul I, who ruled 33 days, and now Pope John Paul II. Conchita Gonzalez says she was told that the third pope, Pope John Paul II, is the pope of the end times. St. John Bosco's 1862 vision of the end time battle at the close of the 20th Century depicted the reigning pope being wounded and then recovering.

Passover was celebrated the last part of April. Jews believe that the Prophet Elijah will come before the appearance of the Messiah (Malachi 4:5-6). Jews ceremoniously unlock the door during Passover so Elijah might enter. An Elijah cup is on the table at mealtime. Elijah called down fire from heaven, even as the Antichrist-team will. The Jewish Forward newspaper 11 and 18 April editions feature front page articles labeling "Israel's Rabbinate a Disgrace to the Jewish People." Rabbi Eric Yoffie, president of the American Hebrew Congregations attacked both Israel's chief Sephardic rabbi, Ellyahu Bakshi Doron and Ashkenazic rabbi, Israel Meir Lau. The liberal reformists have taught that God is a woman and welcomes homosexual men and women as rabbis. The chancellor of the Jewish Theological Seminary, Rabbi Ismar Schorsch agrees and is calling for a dismantling of Israel's rabbinate, saying they are "dysfunctional." How much "flattery" do you suppose Gorbachev would have to spread around before he will have the "progressives" eating out of his hand?

Oft times I have discussed the difference between II Chronicles 7:14 and II Corinthians 6:17. God promises to heal our land if we will but restore His Law. Failing this, we are admonished to come out from Babylon and touch not the unclean thing. God's Law will be restored! We have free agency to choose how we will live. I propose that we strive to institute God's Law within Almost Heaven Covenant Communities in as much as we will while there is time. Cleon Skousen has a new book, "The Majesty of God's Law - It's Coming to America," which outlines how only a hundred statutes are required to govern a community, or the world of righteous people. A summary of his ideas are presented below for your consideration. As for me and mine, we choose to follow what is said.

GOD'S LAW IS COMING TO AMERICA

The following is a review with some excerpts of Cleon Skousen's book - The Majesty of God's Law. This book is offered as this month's special.

"I believe the fact to be, that except [for] the Bible there is not a true history in the world. Uninspired commentators have dishonored the law, by ascribing to it, in certain cases, a sense and meaning which it did not authorize, and which our Savior rejected and reproved. The inspired prophets, on the contrary, expressed the most exalted ideas of the law. They declared that the law of the Lord is perfect; that the statutes of the Lord are right; and that the commandment of the Lord is pure; that God would magnify the law and make it honorable." John Jay is the author of this quote. He was the youngest member of the Constitutional Convention.

The main authors of the Constitution were Bible scholars. They attended one of seven colleges which were backed by different religions. Every church sponsored school required a comprehensive study of the Bible even though they may not go into the ministry. The main emphasis used in writing the Constitution came from the book of Deuteronomy which is the Book of God's Law. After thousands of citations quoted by the Founding Fathers were analyzed, it was found that 34% came from the Bible.

Benjamin Franklin wrote his own creed where he said, "Here is my creed: I believe in one God, the Creator of the universe. That he governs by his providence. That he ought to be worshipped. That the most acceptable service we render to him is in doing good to his other children. That the soul of man is immortal, and will be treated with justice in another life respecting its conduct in this. These I take to be the fundamental points in all sound religion." Breaking down his creed, there are five parts that could be summarized as follows: 1. There exists a Creator who made all things, and mankind should recognize and worship him. 2. The Creator has revealed a moral code of behavior for happy living which distinguishes right from wrong. 3. The Creator holds mankind responsible for the way they treat on another. 4. All mankind live beyond this life. 5. In the next life mankind are judged for their conduct in this one." These five tenets are abundantly evident throughout the writing of the Founding Fathers. The Founders looked upon the precepts of religion and morality as the cornerstones of a free government.

At the age of 36, James Madison was to provide the leadership for the Virginia delegation to the Constitutional Convention. Together with Thomas Jefferson, their goal was to weave together in the American Constitution those principles of government portrayed in the Bible.

We are assured that experience will teach us that the statutes of the Lord are truly inspired. They are right. They give us a sense of belonging to an orderly world which rejoices the soul. These statutes are also clear and pure so that they give us a sense of direction. They enlighten our eyes. God's law is to be obeyed voluntarily rather than by compulsion. Moses was told, "Teach them ordinances and laws...shew them the way wherein they must walk, and the work that they must do." (Exodus 18:20). He was also told by the Lord the type of men who should be elected judges, "Thou shalt provide out of all the people able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness; and place such over them, to be rulers of thousands, and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens: And let them judge the people at all seasons: and it shall be, that every great matter they shall bring unto thee, but every small matter they shall judge: so shall it be easier for thyself, and they shall bear the burden with thee." (Exodus 18:21-22)

Moses gave the following instructions to the first contingent of judges: "Hear the causes between your brethren, and judge righteously between every man and his brother, and the stranger that is with him. Ye shall not respect persons in judgment; but ye shall hear the small as well as the great; ye shall not be afraid of the face of man; for the judgment is God's: and the cause that is too hard for you, bring it unto me, and I will hear it." (Deuteronomy 1:16-17) He went on later to say, "Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment: thou shalt not respect (discriminate against) the person of the poor, nor honor the person of the mighty: but in righteousness shalt thou judge thy neighbour." (Leviticus 19:15) The judges were given a written law to follow that included a wide range of penalties that the judge might impose to fit the circumstances.

The Founders sought for knowledge from the foremost scholars of their day such as John Locke, William Blackstone and Baron Charles de Montesquieu. They studied the political theories of the Persians, Babylonians, Greeks and Romans. They had studied the history of England and the major countries of Europe. Their minds were ripe for the nuggets of God's political science as they carefully read the writings of Moses. Penetrating insight led them to reject the most elementary aspects of British political science on which they had been tutored from early youth. Instead, they gave top priority to the teachings of Moses.

The Mosaic code was made for a unitary republic of one nationality and one faith. When the American Founders discussed how it might be possible to apply these concepts to a pluralistic society of many nationalities and many faiths, they finally accepted the suggestion of John Adams. This doctrine was called "the separation of powers." They would protect the rights of the people by separating the powers of government and thereby playing each of the three branches of government against the other so there would never be a complete concentration of power or dictatorship. One branch would pass all the laws, another branch would administer all the laws, and the judiciary, or third branch would make sure the Constitution was accurately interpreted and applied by both of the other departments.

In Skousen's book you will find the Lord's qualification for executive office holders and how this person is to be moral and virtuous. Certainly doesn't sound like what we have today.

Jethro, Mose's father-in-law, instructed Moses on the fundamentals of a godly political structure. He said to set up a hierarchy of small, manageable groups where everyone had a voice and vote. They were to select captains from their groups. Moses said the people would "take" their captains from their various groups and bring them to him for approval. In other words, each group of ten families would elect a leader whose name would be given to Moses for approval. Then five of these groups of ten would unite to make fifty families. A captain of fifty would be elected and the a group of two fifties would make up a group of 100 families and they would elect a captain and 10 groups of 100 would make a group of 1000 and elect a captain. This is a hierarchy of manageable units where every family head had a voice and a vote. He not only had a direct vote in selecting the leader of his own unit of ten families, but he had a vote in selecting each of the leaders on the higher levels. The Founders recognized the merit of this vertical hierarchy of power. On each level the people were governed by their own elected representatives and it allowed most problems to be solved on the level where they originated. It also allowed the government to be structured from the bottom up in direct contrast to a monarchy or centralized government which is always structured from the top down.

The Founding Fathers knew that the Anglo-Saxons had kept their law so basic and simple that everyone was able to recite the law without referring to any written manuscript. The Anglo-Saxons, even though they had developed into pagans, had lived Moses law without knowing it. They had received it earlier and had memorized it and passed it down from one generation to the next. It was when the Anglo-Saxons conquered England and King Alfred was on the throne that they realized that they had actually been living God's law.

Regarding too many laws James Madison said: "It will be of little avail to the people that the laws are made by men of their own choice if the laws be so voluminous that they cannot be read, or so incoherent that they cannot be understood; if they be repealed or revised before they are promulgated, or undergo such incessant changes that no man, who knows what the law is today, can guess what it will be tomorrow. Law is defined to be a rule of action; but how can that be a rule, which is little known and less fixed?" Madison defines law as a "rule of action." What about laws that are so stringent and oppressive that action is inhibited? Obviously, if the action is destructive of the rights of others, it should be prohibited, but if the law is simply designed to control the voluntary activities of the people, it has defeated the entire purpose of the law.

God's law obligates each citizen to honor, sustain, and promote a strict adherence to the values and inspired guidelines revealed by God for happy living. It all begins with a virtuous people. An advantage of citizenship under the law of the covenant was the fact that no citizen could lose his land by taxation. No taxes were assessed against land (Allodial title?). God's law was structured in such a way that social security was a private matter which revolved around the structure of the family. It commenced with the owning of a home free and clear, and the acquisition of land as a permanent inheritance for the whole family. Within two or three generations, the immediate family was sufficiently secure in its financial stability to take care of any who were sick, disabled, temporarily unemployed, or old enough to retire. Until a family group was capable of sustaining its group needs, the burden was shared by the immediate community. The primary responsibility for educating the children was placed upon the parents. Within each group of 100 families was public school where the parents were in charge and helped teach. If an outside teacher was hired, some of the parents were in attendance to help educate as well. The main emphasis in education was the teaching of correct principles including the historical background for the commandments, policies, and rituals which God required of the people.

God's law provided three rules for the equitable taxation of the people. In this magnificent book you will learn those three rules.

In closing this review, or rather dissemination of information of the book, you learn that the whole intent of the Founding Fathers was to have a nation that followed God's law. America did for a few years and as a result rose very quickly after their independence to become the greatest, wealthiest, most sought after nation in the world.

While the Founders worked towards their goal they also knew the selfishness of mankind. Jefferson said: "I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just, that his justice cannot sleep forever." The Apostle Paul also knew that a nation which mocks God stands in dire peril. He said: "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he reap."

After reading this book you will realize that there is a "remnant" being developed. It is a group of people who desire to follow God's law and to be held accountable to him. Is it possible to do such in today's society and degradation of God's law? Yes, it is! This remnant needs to put into practice God's law in preparation for the cleansing of America when everything will change. There will be a completely new system of law, a completely new system of community life, a new system of money and a new system of government. The original Constitution will be restored. Leaders will be selected without involving politics or political parties. There will be a remarkable new spirit of cooperation and tolerance among people of various faiths. The people who survive the cleansing will have endured a terrifying, soul-searching experience. Whether they were among the righteous who tried "to do all things" whatsoever the Lord commanded, or whether they were among the rebellious and wicked who were fortunate enough to escape, they will all feel an overwhelming sense of complete dependence on God.

This "remnant" needs to be a moral and virtuous people who is seeking to keep the law of God so that when the cleansing comes, they can go out and show others and share the law with them.

I cannot recommend this book enough. I encourage you to please order The Majesty of God's Law and start reading it as soon as it arrives in the mail. Look on the order form for details.

ALMOST HEAVEN, SHENANDOAH, WOODLAND ACRES, AND FLYING ELK - OUR COVENANT COMMUNITIES.

By Jerry Gillespie

My wife and I have had the pleasure to read Cleon Skousen's masterpiece, "The Majesty of God's Law." It is a book that has confirmed to us the reason we packed up and moved five children to Idaho on December 23, 1994. People thought we were nuts leaving 75 degree weather in Arizona and moving to freezing weather in Idaho.

I have never believed myself to be a smart man. I've done plenty of things which people would think were pretty stupid. Moving to Idaho was thought by some to be one of those.

When Bo and I searched for a particular area it was with the intent to find property for ourselves and our families. As we spoke to people about our search more and more people wanted to join us. They asked us to find the land so that they could be a part of the flight from the urban areas of America.

In November 1993 we closed on Almost Heaven with 200 acres. It sold very quickly and then we purchased Shenandoah (400 acres) and it sold even quicker. Since 1993 we have, with your help, purchased 1100 acres and have sold about 800. These were all in lots of 1, 5 and 10 acre parcels.

On our last two projects (Flying Elk 1 and 2 and Almost Heaven Too) the previous owners approached us and asked us to buy their land from them. The arrangements are basically that as we sell the property, we pay them for it.

I had never heard of such a thing.

We are finished buying any more property. Flying Elk II with its 2.5+- acre parcels along a private air strip or Almost Heaven Too with its beautiful views and plenty of trees should entice any person. Almost Heaven Too is our final piece.

It hasn't been real easy up here. I'll be truthful with you and tell you that there have been some problems. We have some people who are upset that Bo isn't more radical, that he's not attacking the government and that he chooses to just live in peace in this beautiful setting.

A person told me that it didn't matter where you went in America, you could take any group of people and throw a rope around them and you would have your share of fruits, nuts and kooks. It is true here but fortunately the number of nuts and kooks are very small.

I'm convinced that we are a "remnant" and that we need to follow God's law. Whenever a person chooses to follow God's law, there will be those who will harass or attempt to oppose you. That is fine, it's to be expected.

The idea of a "covenant community" or moving to Idaho isn't for everyone. You can set up your own where you live but our research has shown this to be one of the safest areas in America.

But, if you have had the desire or prompting within your heart to be here - decide soon! With Gorbys' remarks and more signs I don't think there is much time left. It's an individual decision and no one can decide for you. I decided for my family and it was right.

Call us at (208)935-1325 and ask for land information. Talk to Dustin or Vicci and make an appointment to see us. Once we're sold out there won't be anymore. We're prepared for around 200 families who desire to follow God's law. Are you one of them???

THE REAL BOMBING TRIAL IS IN OKLAHOMA CITY

The jury hearing the government's case against Tim McVeigh was seated in the Denver Federal Court House on 22 April, one day before McVeigh's 29th birthday. Opening statements began on 24 April, but the real trial and witnesses to the bombing may be heard in Oklahoma City as a result of Grand Juror Hoppy Heidelberg's organization, Oklahomans for Truth.

Hoppy served as a Grand Juror hearing federal prosecutors evidence against McVeigh and Terry Nichols. As a responsible juror, Hoppy took his duties seriously and carefully studied the written instructions provided each member. Each day Hoppy made notes which were dutifully turned over to U.S. Marshals at each day's end for safe keeping. One day, during a lunch break, Hoppy noticed that someone had read the notes he left on his chair during lunch. The hearing room was locked and guarded, only government agents had access. To test his suspicion, Hoppy held onto his notes the next day and was called by the judge moments after arriving home. Offering to drive the papers to the court, Hoppy was told that FBI agents to be there shortly to collect them. Two armed agents arrived and in addition to picking up the notes, used the occasion to try and intimidate the tall, handsome white-haired Blanchard, Oklahoma rancher, by brandishing their guns.

Hoppy soon discovered that the government had no intention of following the law or the Grand Juror guidelines. Jurors could not question witnesses without first submitting the questions in writing to the U.S. Attorney. No witnesses, or experts could be called to answer questions or explain points of confusion. Despite the U.S. Supreme Court's recent decision allowing a Grand Jury to "compel" witnesses and evidence, the Oklahoma Bombing Grand Jury was limited to only that information presented by the government. Hoppy learned that there are a dozen eye-witnesses and scores of survivors with key information, none of whom were allowed to testify. Doctor Brown, a seismologist located near the explosion at the Omniplex was disallowed. His graphs show THREE distinct "events" at the time of the blast. The first was smallest, followed by the largest, and a third quake larger than the first. Survivors told news media that they felt the building rumble and shake several seconds before the windows were blown in, indicating multiple explosions. These witnesses were not allowed to appear before the Grand Jury.

Upon seeing that the Grand Jury was a sham, Hoppy wrote a letter of concern to the judge. A short time later he was fired from the jury. Even though he voted to indict both McVeigh and Nichols based on the limited focused government evidence, Hoppy felt the government was subverting the truth. He went public with the more obvious points of cover-up and was threatened by the judge with imprisonment. Determined to do his job -- despite government resistance, Hoppy formed OKLAHOMANS FOR TRUTH. As the trial in Denver progresses, Hoppy plans to depose witnesses that the government won't. Many people with key information have been included on a federal witness list and told by the FBI to keep quiet. Hoppy believes these people have been deceived and will not be called. Oklahoma State Representative Charles Key supports Hoppy's effort to get the full truth and is working to commission a "County" Grand Jury to consider the evidence missing from the Denver trial.

As a Grand Jury member, Hoppy is convinced that there was more than one "McVeigh" in Oklahoma City on 19 April. He heard government witnesses describe the man who rented the Ryder truck and was observed in Oklahoma City as being 5-foot 11-inches tall and 185 pounds with a ruddy complexion. The real McVeigh is taller, thinner, and fair skinned! Heidelberg is hopping mad the prosecutors won't go beyond their "game plan" in seeking evidence and truth. He vows to do what the government won't and says that numerous people from other states are interested in forming "Truth" groups.

What Heidelberg is doing in its purest form is organizing an Oklahoma Citizens Grand Jury. I believe his efforts will result in a tremendous contribution, if legislatures will help him get the information before county grand jurors for further indictments -- after the Denver trial runs its course. Hoppy is convinced that the government may want to see McVeigh acquitted in order to win stronger "Anti-Domestic Terrorism" laws. I support Hoppy's effort. He is working within the law to make the law work as it should.

Many patriots are quick to abandon the law and seek vigilante solutions because they have lost faith in the system. As I have expressed before: the only thing worse than bad government is no government. Anarchists are worse criminals than the bureaucrats they accuse of corruption. Chaos is the result of anarchy. The Law of our Constitutional Republic is the best in the world today. Mike Wallace said he would write my epitaph when, I am found face down striving to prove our system works, when he has spent a career showing the opposite. The problem is not in the LAW, but rather that some believe themselves ABOVE the law. When government exceeds its authority, We the People are responsible for bringing those responsible to justice. Two months ago I reported on three San Diego Superior Court judges sentenced to prison for corruption. This month on the 21st, Superior Court judge George Levine appears before a judicial review council in Connecticut. We the People can have justice -- if we stay within the law and use it against those who would pervert our system of laws.

Hoppy Heidelberg needs financial help to hire court recorders and depose witnesses. Send donations to: OKLAHOMANS FOR THE TRUTH, POB 53, OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLAHOMA 73101. Hoppy has a website at www.oktruth.org. You can fax him at 405-485-9757, or talk to him between ranch chores at 405-485-3030. All of Hoppy's Grand Jury info is on a professionally done video available at 800-551-5328. I love Hoppy Heidelberg. He is one of my personal heroes. I pray that his effort will grow throughout grassroots America until every State has a Citizens for Truth ombudsman to do what government won't. INSIDE ARMAGEDDON (REV 16:12)

I've written about Israel, and more specifically Jerusalem on many occasions, always citing interacting facts leading up to the final defeat of the Antichrist and his 200 million followers at Armageddon. Scriptures instruct us that the Messiah will personally win the victory. The Prophet Ezekiel saw flesh melted before the army of skeletons could fall to ground and eyes sucked from the skull by searing heat. Nuclear weapons were unknown then, but God is not a liar. His Laws are absolute. Oft-times God uses people to accomplish His calendar of events. I don't know exactly how a human sea challenging Jerusalem will be destroyed, but using what I do know, I offer this snap-shot of imaginative prose as entertaining food for thought.

Jerusalem is destined to become Earth's religious and financial center following a final peace guarantee exchanging land for promises with Syria and the Arab coalition. The resolution will include a provision allowing Jews to erect an altar pursuant to the reconstruction of Solomon's Temple. Conflict resolution experts having achieved universal acceptance of bans on Chemical, Nuclear, and Biological weapons, declare a final victory of peace over war. Such prospects unite excited global investors to locate at the epicenter of world activity. Jerusalem embraces the three major religions of Judaism, Islam, and Christianity. The Pope relocates from the Vatican. Economic policy emanates from the new pulse-point of the universe. Jewish factions exploit their new-formed fame siphoning international resources into their own coffers -- much to the disadvantage of population centers in the former Soviet Union, Red China, and Islamic nations of Micronesia, South Asia, the Near, and Middle East. Angry over being excluded by Jewish comptrollers and relegated by Trilateral World Trade commissioners to slave labor manufacturing, they merge for a military thrust at the new Babylon.

Reorganization of the United Nations Security Council in 1997 left the USA powerless to meaningfully direct, or influence UN Peacekeeping operations. Wrathful at the dominant moneychangers and religious leaders, and having failed at consolidating his universal leadership through the UN, the Antichrist allows the dissident powers to make their move, while keeping UN forces at bay. Jewish advisers within the Whitehouse and State Department conspire to blunt the enemy spearheads converging to mass in Syria along the high speed Northwest (Iraq) and Southeast (Turkey) axis of the Euphrates River. Once together, the combined "kings of the east" forces will blitz Israel beginning at the Golan Heights, while traditional enemies of Israel drive north toward Jerusalem from the south. Israel decisively beat back and destroyed Arab attacks shortly after becoming a nation in 1948, again in the 1967 Six-Day War and the Yom Kippur surprise assault in October 1973. America's unwavering support has allowed Israel to maintain a defense force adequate to fight a determined aggressor, but increasing UN disarmament and peace initiatives has weakened Israel's military effectiveness.

All nuclear weapons are under positive UN control. Heavily taxed global majority attitudes are increasingly against the flourishing financial Jewish Mecca. Uniformed Americans are dispatched in increasing numbers to control domestic unrest and secure the Antichrist's European interests. There will be no authorized U.S. response to Israel's looming peril. Pentagon staff in the National Military Command Center watch electronic updates as belligerent forces move in for the slaughter. A small knot of Jewish staff appointees from the U.S. Security Council and State Department meet in the Deputy CIA Director's suite in Old Executive Office Building adjacent to the White House. The Secretary of Defense heads the rogue caucus. Circumventing computer tracks, they are frantically searching classified folders for the existence of any nuclear weapons not destroyed or under UN jurisdiction. Suddenly, a nondescript State Department underling recalls a brief article cited several years previous as hate material by the Anti-Defamation League. U.S. Special Forces were equipped with man-portable "SADAMs" (Strategic Atomic Demolition Munitions). The hip-pocket nukes were always illegal and not included on the UN weapons inventory.

Several discreet phone calls later confirm that three of the older devices still exist in classified storage containers at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. Devout Christian elements within the CIA-Special Forces community agree that something drastic must be done to spoil the mounting invasion. Targeting must be accomplished, transportation clandestinely arranged, and experienced infiltration teams identified and assembled -- all within a precious few hours remaining. Prevented from accessing computer files, the assembly divides into three working groups to focus on accomplishing the myriad of tasks as quickly as possible. The ADL is contacted concerning the source of the anti-militia story, and identify a hard-headed middle-aged dissident who authored the "Center For Action" Newsletter. Further investigation shows him to be a former SADAM Team Leader. A phone call determines his location, since the advent of a cashless economic system, in an mountain Idaho patriot community known as Almost Heaven. The group labors deep into the night.

Targeting experts have isolated two strategic targets within the destruction capability of the 5-kiloton devices. Both are dams controlling the waters of the Euphrates which have been cut off as the avenue of advance for the converging northern army groups. Turkey controls the dam closest to the northern headwaters at Reban, while Syria has the huge Russian constructed Tabaqah Dam. The latter, started in 1971, is 8,500 feet long at the foundations and 204 feet high. A residential city and million kilowatt power station are nestled at the base. Perfect timing in destruction of both dams would result in a horrific wall of water washing everything in its path into oblivion. Turkey had maintained peaceful relations with Israel throughout the difficult years of Arab war, but had given in to the mounting Islamic coalition and contributed armed forces while drying up the Euphrates. Could three tiny teams of Americans be convinced to make a desperate one-way mission under impossible odds to save a nation despised by much of the world's struggling people? If recruited, could they somehow be delivered on target with any expectation of mission accomplishment? It was much the same as when the Prophet Elisha single-handedly took on the Assyrian army. It would require God's intervention with "Chariots of Fire." The mission was "christened" Operation Godfire (I,II,III).

Favors from certain mole members of the Council on Foreign Relations were being called in. One such person had at one time been the best friend of the former Green Beret commander. It was essential that he convince the blacksheep to lead one of the direct actions teams. The problem was how to rebuild bridges long ago burned. Joe knew that Bo had no interest in monetary reward. He dialed the Idaho number and thought the truth might be the best approach. Joe recognized Claudia's voice: "Joe Felter here, is Jimbo around?" The long pause signaled misgiving, but finally came the desired response: "Just a minute, Joe, I'll see if I can locate him." More silence. "Hey Joe, where you at?" "Jimbo! I need to talk to you big time. Let me give you a number. Go to a more secure line and call me back, OK? This is super important." "OK Joe."

Joe knew that beneath the white hair and behind the blue eyes of his friend awaited a warrior always ready for recall to active service. "Bo, I've been authorized to call you back into uniform for one of your specialties. You must immediately get on the first thing smoking east. Call me when you are in the clear and anywhere near here. Gobs of people are counting on you, Bo. Please trust me. There has never been a greater need for your talents than now!"

Sheldon and Jim helped kick the tires on the tired twin-Cessna parked at the Almost Heaven strip. Tiny overnight bags were carelessly tossed into the cargo hole. A small fearful crowd of family had gathered to do all they could – wish a farewell to their men – not knowing where or why they were bound. James stepped up extending his hand: "Be careful Granddad." "You got it son." Then the groups separated into husbands and wives as private thoughts and good-byes were exchanged. Lise' gripped both of Sheldon's hands: "Don't you forget there are three sons that need you as much as I do." Her searching eyes looked deep into his for reassurance. "We'll be OK," wasn't all she had hoped for. Vicci held Jim close staining his jacket with her silent tears. She had been an Army wife and suffered the internal fears of the Connecticut trial. Claudia was still trying to understand why her husband would leave the security of the community to go where trouble and danger surely awaited. It was her fate to be married to a warrior. "I wonder what you'll be when you grow up?" "Shug, I wouldn't go if it wasn't of major importance. I love you. You know me, I'll be back soon."

The props bit into the clear Idaho air and the secret doubts in each of those affects increased as the gray and white bird climbed out over the beautiful Clearwater River Valley. It had been sometime since the men had been behind the controls. Flights were limited to emergency medical evacuations now that it required a "mark" to buy fuel. Joe had cleared 611U to refuel at military bases along the route to Andrews Air Force Base. Logistical teams had already prepared combat assault kits sufficient to accomplish the mission. Each of the three teams would board its own Starlifter C-141. The large birds were listed as UN relief aircraft loaded with peacekeeping supplies headed for Turkey. Buried beneath the pallets of rations, uniforms, and medical supplies were the component parts of an atom bomb.

At Andrews, Joe and Bo shook hands. It was as if none of the aggravation separating their political differences had occurred. Joe had been there when Bo, as an honor graduate of the Command & General Staff College, had requested reassignment to Vietnam. It was a death wish. Joe had patiently talked his chum into going to school instead. It was Joe who encouraged Bo to marry CJ, the love of his life. When called to add condemning testimony before a federal grand jury, Joe had instead steered them toward finding a "No True Bill." Bo had unsuccessfully sought to do something for his pal. As efficient staff aids urged the new arrivals aboard a gray giant, both men knew this was "pay back."

The clam shells closed and engines whined as they spooled up. Joe was gone as were the other strange looking staff-puke "rubber-neckers" who had ventured into the hanger to see the plane off at a respectable distance. Their waxy pale blank hollow faces betrayed facts still unknown, that this was a mission of forlorn. Only an Air Force crew chief and slightly pudgy two-man CIA area specialist team remained on the nylon web seats. The five were manifested as civilian UN Observers headed for Ankara. No words were spoken. It was time for reflection as the jet left the ground and banked out over the Chesapeake Bay climbing through a night overcast toward the East. Two other jet transports departed at the same time. The formation would be refueled on their non-stop flight -- strange for a routine "pigs and rice" run, but who ever checked into such training missions? The crew chief checked to insure the load had not shifted during take-off and disappeared into the pilots compartment. Alone, the senior CIA liaison withdrew a folder from his jacket and handed it without comment to Bo. Sheldon and Jim stretched out on the web seats to capture what sleep was possible as they headed into the unknown.

Paragraph 1, a. required two pages to outline enemy forces; 1, b. was much shorter listing friendly assets. One entry brought on the first and only smile: "Senior Colonel Fred Sawaya." This Christian officer within the Syrian defense forces had been a boyhood friend in Tucson, Arizona. He returned to Syria with his family after the Baath Party stabilized the nation under then General, now President Asad. Fred's dad had been a close confidant leading to Fred's appointment to the Military Academy at Homs, and a commission in the Internal Security Police. Was he to provide a way back home? Paragraph 2 was the mission statement: "Godfire Team Bo infiltrates by parachute on order into the Bahrat Assad Reservoir to destroy the Tabaqahdam using SADAM M-59 as set." Paragraph 3 a. gave details on the mission execution. We were to use Closed Circuit Underwater Breathing Apparatus Mark XV with mixed gas which have a range of 2 nautical miles and are good to a depth of 1,000 feet. The bomb was to be assembled at the base of the dam 240-feet underwater. The "cover story" was rather interesting: We were to hijack the aircraft over Turkey posing as rabid JDL (Jewish Defense League) militants. The USAF crew would be made to bail out. Our CIA escorts were prepared to land the plane Tel Aviv. Paragraphs 4 and 5 covered what little there was to Administration, Logistics, Command and Signal. No one had thought much beyond arming the device -- if the team got that far.

The second CIA man turned out to be less "pudgy" after redistributing his personal arsenal. He served as security as Bo asked to see the bomb parts. The device was hidden in a rice pallet, divided into three waterproof containers that would be slung between the knees as the men exited the aircraft. Bo's kit held two silver dollar-size "squib" cells, the top-mounted timing unit, and black steel gun-tube with its number-10 can-sized plutonium projectile. The second container was filled with the large pot base assembly and locking top collar. Three heavy plutonium "donut" rings were individually packaged in the final container. Together, weighing in at less than 100-pounds, the device would release more energy than 10,000,000 pounds of TNT. Tamped deep beneath the waterline, the reinforced concrete dam foundation would provide, the least course of resistance. In a single second a 35-mile long by 7-mile wide train of water swelled to more than 240 feet high by the May ending rainy season would be release on unsuspecting troops marshaling in the Jazirah flats.

The parachutes were standard dash-one canopies capable of supporting the combined weight of man-scuba-and equipment bag. Black rubber dry suits with full face masks, gloves and swim gear would keep us toasty at the bottom of the cold reservoir -- and guard against high voltage water security systems. There was no reserve chute. If any team member failed to make the mark, the device could not be fired. Jump altitude would be less than 500 feet above ground to mask the massive C-141 from radar. A gutsy optimistic plan with more room for failure than the barren Hammad Desert. If any team member turned up missing, the remaining members would dump their components and hope to somehow rendezvous with Col. Sawaya at a prearranged location near the western town of Homah. Bo re-stowed the gear and stretched out on the rice bags. He would spend the remaining time with his bride CJ as only a warrior practiced in the art of mind control can.

The dark cold noise of the 141 increased as the rear ramp opened and the confused air crew were made to step into the void after assuring their chutes were properly attached. By the time they were discovered, the mission would have succeeded or failed. The Starlifter sliced southeastward down through the night following the wide Euphrates out of Turkey. At what seemed like barely above the water, Sheldon, Jim and Bo began helping each other don personal equipment. The Mark XV had its own Buoyancy Compensator properly weighted to allow the divers to descend once they were in the water and free of their chutes. Fins were taped on; the double hose second-stage regulator and face-mask came over the head and was tied to the chest parachute chest strap. The modified T-10 fit over the Mark XV, extended leg and shoulder straps allowed the chute to fit over the UBA -- although with considerable discomfort. The nuclear components and items of personal survival were packaged in a standard Special Forces ruck sac within two waterproof bags. Hand pumps attached to the deflator valve removed all free air from the package. The bags were attached on quick releases and 30-foot drop lines that would keep us umbilicated, but allow some freedom in the water to maneuver free of the chute and suspension lines.

All too soon the security agent made his way to the rear ramp: "Ready?" "Yeah." "We got about 6-minutes. Watch the green light. We will illuminate it once we are over the reservoir. The rest is up to you." "Gottcha!" With a final thumbs up he disappeared back toward the front. Jim made a final Jumpmaster check. We were hooked up with static lines clear; all equipment was doubled checked. We helped each other stand up. The fins made it impossible to walk forward. We decided to walk backwards off the ramp holding hands. There would be no chance to steer the chutes before hitting the water at such a low jump altitude. Landing close together was critical. Next we would clear the chute, come together, get our visual references, check the attack board and compass headings and descend, towing the containers. With luck we wouldn't be too far from the dam, nor on top of enemy security craft. So many "ifs."

Suddenly the light glowed green! The three men stood together clinging to each other moving carefully down ramp. Bo glanced along the line of flight and spotted the power generating plant and support town. They waited one second, two, three, then he gave the "OK!" The end of the ramp was much calmer than Sheldon had expected. The Starlifter's fuselage created a partial vacuum at this point. Burned kerosene (JP-4 jet fuel) was in the air. Holding hands for a brief moment the men cleared the ramp and watched the C-141 pull up and away. Then their bodies were jerked and racked as the tornadic slipstream tore at them. A sudden final violent yank and they were under canopy TOGETHER drifting for the dark wet void below. Bo turned the chest release button and struck it with a right close fist. The straps loosened as they were freed. Next, he reached across with his right hand and grasp the left set of web risers. Once in his grip, he pulled down and with his left hand squeezed the canopy release. In the next moment he released the risers as his fins contacted the water – the inflated canopy flipped to the side. Bo had made dozens of scuba jumps in his career as a Special Forces soldier, none had gone this smooth – thank God.

With BC inflated, the three worked on the face masks and regulator; be careful to keep the breathing supply valve closed until the mouthpiece was firmly in place. None of them could afford to flood the system which would mix water with sodalime scrubber in a fatal "caustic cocktail." Bo didn't even remember releasing the drop lines, but the equipment floated slightly submerged just clear of the sinking canopy. The three men continued in silence to free themselves of the parachutes. Together, masks fitted and with the $25,000 computerized rebreathers functioning, they made a final survey of the surface. All was quiet as they dropped out of sight.

Bo set the direction with Jim and Sheldon on the flanks. Each frogman knew their swim assignment. There had been no time to determine an accurate fin-kick distance to compute how long it would take to arrive on target. Bo knew the best way to navigate a straight line under water was to kick from the hip. Jim set their depth at 45 feet, placing them beneath surface wave action and patrol boats, yet shallow enough to avoid any chance of narcosis. Bo's compass was set to purposely take them further east than a direct course to the dam center. This "offset" eliminated confusion as to their exact location and which way to swim once they reached the foundation. Without the offset, they would have no way to know the dam center without surfacing. Sheldon scanned the darkness for obstacles and fish nets. Unlike open-circuit scuba, the rebreathers are silent, producing no bubbles, and warm, since the expelled air is scrubbed of body producing CO₂ and reintroduced. A computer measures the water depth and delivers the best combination of oxygen, helium, and nitrogen.

Bo estimated the distance to the dam at less than one nautical mile (1.15 statute miles) from where they entered the water. Two miles is the limit of horizontal visibility of a swimmer. The dam had been in full view. A glance at the tritium watch on the attack board showed 0230 hours. They had been swimming for 30 minutes. His concentration had been on the luminous compass line. It had not budged. Bo now slowed the pace and rocked the board just to make sure the compass had not locked up. He could see the eyes of Jim and Sheldon peering at him through the face glass out of the blackness. Bo gave Jim a thumbs down, the signal to go deeper. The low flying Starlifter might have spooked security troops. Powerful spotlights might penetrate the depths and reveal their presence. Jim leveled them off at 100 feet.

Sheldon suddenly tugged at Bo's elbow, pointing ahead. There was a solid concrete wall. The swim team pivoted right and began paralleling the structure while heading for the bottom. Huge grates passed by, these were inlet gates for water that turned the giant electrical turbines. The turbines were at rest since the Euphrates was being dried up (Rev 16:12). The attack board computer depth gauge read 212 feet. Bo kicked on for a few more strokes before stopping. The three began hauling in the waterproof tow bags. Sheldon produced the base; Jim carefully positioned each of the three thick radioactive donuts by inserting both hands, fingers outward inside the hole and stacking them in position. Now, Bo removed the Squib-cells and screwed them into the base bottom by reaching through the donut ring centers. Next came the base top and locking collar which had been especially fitted with a waterproof membrane and pump. Bo would have to remove the remaining water from the base if the gun piston were to properly fill the ring center, crush the squibs and set off the chain reaction that would blow the dam. The gun tube was also fitted with a watertight seal. The tube was inserted and turned until secured in position. The top mounted timer had been preset. The knobs had only to be pressed down to irreversibly activate the detonation sequence. There was no FAIL SAFE! Once pressed, any disturbance of the device or the timer would fire the gun piston and explode the device.

Three sets of eyes watched as Bo mentally noted before pressing the "M" (month) – "05," "D" (date) 19, "H" (hour) "1200" and "M" (minute) "30." it was done. In exactly nine hours the mission would either succeed or fail. Bo loosed the grease pencil from his attack board slate and wrote upon the pot-belly stove-like bomb: "God's Will be done!" His "OK" signal was acknowledged by Jim and Sheldon as they secured the attack boards and reset the compass heading to read 265 degrees. The course would bring them to the southern side of the reservoir. They would ditch their gear, don the robes, "rag top and fan belt" headdress of the locals and hastily make their way along the railway to Homah – and home.

It was announced on CNN that the UN is taking steps to increase the Security Council members and eliminate the veto power of the five permanent members (America, England, Russia, China, and France)! On Thursday, April 24, it was announced that Russia and China have officially joined the New World Order!

What Is The Bo Gritz CENTER FOR ACTION???

Center For Action (CFA) was started by Col. James "Bo" Gritz and his wife Claudia in 1989. Bo had spent over 30 years of his life serving in the U.S. Army. He is America's most decorated Green Beret Commander in the Vietnam War. In General William Westmoreland's best seller, "A Soldier's Report" Gen. Westmoreland dedicated a chapter to Bo and called it "THE American Soldier." Bo received 62 citations of valor.

After Vietnam Bo served as Commander of Special Forces in Latin America, Chief of Staff in the Pentagon, Congressional Officer for the Army and more. He holds three Master Degrees including Law Enforcement, Communications and Journalism.

Bo has led numerous POW/MIA rescue operations. It was during one of these that Bo was given the names of high government officials smuggling drugs by the drug Lord Khun Sa of Burma.

It was at this time in 1989 that Bo organized the Center For Action.

In 1991 Bo ran for President and asked Jerry Gillespie to join him as National Campaign Coordinator and currently serves as business partner and associate.

Bo was successful in 1992 of rescuing Randy Weaver and his girls from murder by the U.S. government. Bo testified before the U.S. Senate regarding Ruby Ridge and negotiated with the Freeman in Jordan, Montana.

In 1993 Center For Action started SPIKE (Specially Prepared Individuals for Key Events) Delta Force training and traveled through out the nation teaching special preparedness courses. After 3 and 1/2 years of training, thousands of students have attended the training in person or purchased the videos.

That specialized training in video form is now available to the general public. The Center continues its SPIKE training by offering special SPIKES, such as Airborne, Scuba and others.

The Bo Gritz Center For Action newsletter is published monthly. Founded in 1991, the newsletter focuses on current events within the united states of America and the world and how the events may affect you, the subscriber. The annual subscription rate is $30.00 within the United States, $36.00 outside the United States and $48.00 for overseas mailings. There are no refunds on the newsletter.

This newsletter provides the "other side of the story" you may not be hearing from the national press. Col. Gritz's comments are based upon his 30+ years of military service with many of those years in secret operations and working with the government. From time to time Col. Gritz will recommend people who may be considered experts in different areas. This is not an endorsement but should be considered carefully by the subscriber.
